

CAROLYN TRAYLOR ADDS STORIES TO PRAISE REPORT

Dallas, TX-Carolyn Traylor's 2006 release, There's A Story Behind My Praise, raises the question, "What's the story?"

As the title track heats up airwaves across the nation, Traylor is spending her time not only talking to radio programmers and talk show hosts, but listening. What she hears is a dream come true. And a new story to tell.

Years ago, Traylor prayed that people would be so moved by her music that listeners would be compelled to pull over if they were driving; so overcome by the emotional moment and the spirit of connection and healing that they needed to stop. Traylor decided she would use this as her marker that at last she was really where God wanted her to be.

Traylor is not shy with God. She asks him for exactly what she wants and, knowing that every little thing matters to Him, that nothing is insignificant, he will deliver to her, her hearts' desire within His will.

Recently, she was speaking with a radio host for Heaven 97, (Antonio Johnson and Warren Brooks) who has the single, "There's A Story Behind My Praise" in heavy rotation. A listener had recently called in to relate that she was so blessed by "There's A Story Behind My Praise," so moved, in fact, that she had to pull over and cry. That was in Dallas.

In Beaumont, Texas, the single is the most requested song for the station and is heard by inmates in the local prison. One gentleman, who is living out a sixty year sentence, wrote home to say "thank-you" for this song, it has really helped him through his difficulties.

Winston-Salem North Carolina, same thing. "Oh my God, I had to pull over to the side of the road when this song came on..."

A simple prayer, answered. Now there's a story because of her praise. Traylor says about being in the music business, "It's not about money. I want to bless people. I want my music to stand a long time as a source of comfort, healing, and a blessing for others."

From New Jersey to Alabama, North Carolina, and Texas, listeners are feeling the blessings. Traylor thanks God for answering her prayer from so long ago and looks forward to adding more stories to be praised.
